Ustler Hall Sundial

The sundial at Ustler Hall stands on a brick pedestal and was a finishing touch to the Catherine A. and Mary E. Yardley Garden. A gift from Herb Yardley and his wife Catherine, both UF alumni, the garden was completed in 2006, transforming a space which was previously a parking lot into an elegant garden of native plants with bench seating, a large fountain, and a commemorative wall honoring many women associated with the university and the state. The Yardley Garden serves as a greenway to connect the recently renovated and restored Kathryn Chicone Ustler Hall to the heart of the historic University of Florida campus. This outdoor space is active with students and faculty studying, socializing, and even holding occasional class discussions.
