The University of Florida Center for European Studies (CES) fosters international awareness in the community through educational programs for business organizations, state and local government, K-12 students and teachers, the media, and the general public. On campus, the CES offers language and areas studies courses, degree options, and study abroad opportunities.

The United States has no stronger partner than Europe in advancing security and prosperity around the world.

— President Barack Obama prior to the November 2010 EU-US summit
