

FUTURES OF AMERICAN STUDIES

A CONFERENCE IN HONOR OF DAVID LEVERENZ

The future comes apace: /
What shall defend the interim? and at length / How goes our reckoning?
William Shakespeare
Timon of Athens

February 7-9, 2008

Like any futures market, that of the in-(inter-, in-between)discipline of American Studies is at the present moment a highly volatile one. In this year's conference, we will speculate on the promises of an American Studies to come by showcasing some of the rich, diverse, and innovative scholarship of faculty at the University of Florida and beyond. In so doing, we also hope at length to begin a reckoning of our debt to our colleague, David Leverenz for his many contributions to the field, the profession, and our program.

For further information and schedule of events, visit the conference web-site www.clas.ufl.edu/users/pwegner/conferencewebpage.html

PRESENTATIONS OF NEW WORK by UF Faculty, Marsha Bryant, Kim Emery, Andrew M. Gordon, Tace Hedrick, Susan Hegeman, Julie Chun Kim, Debra Walker King, David Leverenz, Leah Rosenberg, Jodi Schorb, Malini Johar Schueller, Stephanie A. Smith, LaMon-da Horton-Stallings, Phillip E. Wegner, Ed White

SPECIAL INVITED GUESTS
Priscilla Wald (Duke University)
Vivian Pollak (Washington University)